Space for Hope, Homs, Syria

$ 1,000.00

This is a program the young adults of the Homs Evangelical Presbyterian Church started to bring together Christian and Muslim youth to experience and build community within Homs. It began with exercises which mixed the youth into teams; more advanced programming involving discussions now are possible among the groups as they learn from one another and develop some respect and trust. Life skill classes are being held as Christian values are exhibited and encouraged for harmony,

Kherallah Atallah

$ 500.00

Khehallah is a second year student at the Near East School of Theology (NEST) located in Beirut. He is a native of Homs, Syria. He had to become proficient in English before being accepted since all instruction is conducted in English. NEST is the reformed school of theology in the Middle East and has students from throughout the region. Kherallah feels called to return to Syria upon completion of his studies. These funds are used for books, both those purchased and those he can download and print. Following his examination successfully, he would be ordained by NESSL.
